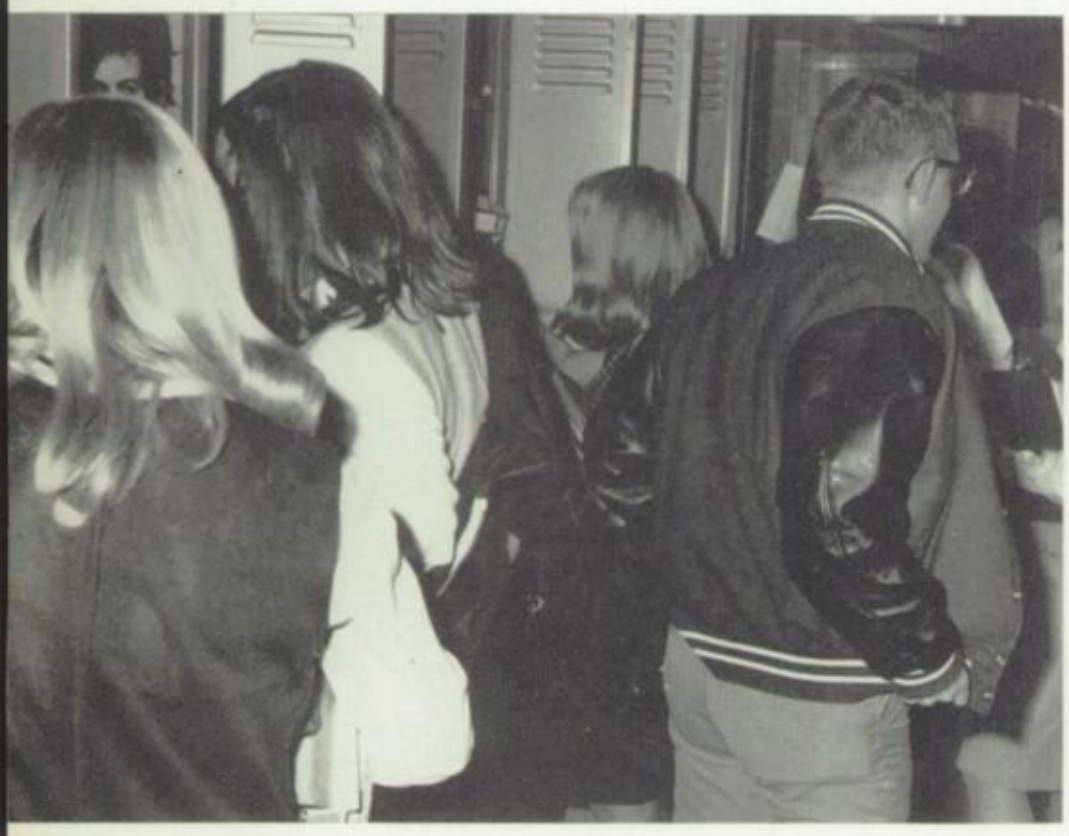
School days were full of traditional activities that became almost second nature. When class schedules were changed, many students found their way to regular classes by habit. Some days had insignificant twists that made them just a little different. For example, on February 7, one lunch period sang "Happy Birthday" to Charles Dickens on his 154th anniversary. One day brought excitement for those who were aware of Jean Dixon's prediction of a flying saucer's landing on earth. Over the year, many bus students stood for more than 200 hours in the Commons while waiting for their buses.

Day-to-Day Routines Are Taken for Granted,



Mass confusion occurs in the halls after the 8:15 bell as students hurry to their lockers before going to homeroom.

Homework assignments often require extra work at the library, using the many reference materials available.

Each day students line up in the office to receive blue and yellow slips for absence from class.

yet Make Up an Unforgettable Year

Amid stacks of books, hungry boys curb their appetites with hot lunches from the cafeteria or food brought from home.

The five minute break between classes gives students a chance to drink at the water fountain.

Another day ends as students begin either the routine bus ride or long walk home.

An all-school assembly in the gym with introductions of six candidates for Queen ignited Homecoming activities. Student voting selected the winners for the reigning positions. Thursday evening's bonfire set the weekend blazing ahead. Cheerleaders pepped up spirits by burning a Curwensville player in effigy. Flames and energies rose as souvenir footballs were tossed out and the football players were introduced. On Friday the Li'l Indians' victory over the undefeated Curwensville team rekindled enthusiasm. The impressive score increased half time excitement when Homecoming Queen Kathy Anderson and her court were borne triumphantly around the field. A muddy field failed to dampen the Powderpuff Football Game on Saturday. In the first game Coach Myers' powerful junior girls contained the hard-hitting sophomores, 12-6. Then the undefeated seniors stamped out the juniors, 20-0. Saturday night's informal dance in the Commons brought Homecoming activities to a spectacular finish—four big days from October 13-16.

Electing Student Council officers and sorting graduation announcements, traditional activities at IASHS, kept many students busy in their extra-curricular hours. A unique feature of the school term was an evaluation system by eighteen teachers and administrators from schools all over Pennsylvania. Student Council worked with the Indiana Post Office to acquire a mailbox and a mailman, who, bearded for the Sesquicentennial, came every morning. Also new this year were five tutors to help students in all areas of study. Along with various donated and purchased books, the library received two world atlases on wire stands. The student parking lot, now a standard feature at the school, was improved by a flight of wooden steps from the lot to the sidewalk. The cafeteria inaugurated a new lunch plan that gave the students a choice of two lunches. At the end of the year, however, the plan was discontinued. An addition of small pine trees on the hill behind the football field will in future years prevent congestion that occurred on Sixth Street during football games. Spring Week may become a tradition at Indiana since student response was so enthusiastic. Nearly one half of the student body participated in a computer-match dance to climax the big clean-up, dress-up for spring week.

Smoothly running, ever so dependable, and always busy were just a few of the characteristics of the Administration of Indiana Area High School. Consisting of these six prominent figures, they made it possible for the year's activities to be carried out effectively while also trying to solve the many arising problems. Our principal, Mr. McGee, successfully completed another year bearing the weight and responsibility which accompanies this position. An equally important member was Dr. Elicker, curriculum co-ordinator, who spent his time planning new courses along with keeping class schedules balanced. Dr. Getts, Superintendent of Schools, faithfully submitted all of our problems and controversies to the Joint School Board for solving. The Guidance Department, under the supervision of Miss Moorhead as girls' counselor and Mr. Kunselman as boys' counselor, was extremely busy throughout the school term as they administered achievement tests, helped seniors with college decisions, and made out new schedules. This overlapping teamwork could not have existed long without the help of Mrs. Recupero, Activities Director, who completed the ties among this industrious and valuable staff. In short, the efficiency of I.A.S.H.S. depended greatly on the teamwork of these six administrators.

and with the Aid of This Crew, IASHS Glows

Mr. Frye, a member of the maintenance crew, completes the big after-school job of emptying waste baskets into the incinerator.

A school does not function by itself, but the school board, secretaries, maintenance crew, and cafeteria staff, often hidden in the background, helped make it seem so to the 937 Indiana Area Senior High students. The office secretaries had the job of keeping track of everyone's grades, clubs, classes, and absences. When snow was piled on everyone's walks, the paths at our school were bare. Whether they were shoveling snow or mowing grass, cleaning windows or mopping floors, the ten members of the maintenance staff kept Indiana High School spotless. Although few people were aware of the maintenance crew as they cleaned at night or shoveled snow early in the morning, everyone was well aware of the thirteen cafeteria workers who prepared and served the food. New plates and a choice between the regular lunch and a soup and sandwich meal added to everyone's enjoyment of the cafeteria food. The Indiana Area School Board had the important job of allocating tax money for all need textbooks and supplies. For the first time in the school's history, the Board hired tutors to help students who had trouble in major subjects.

Rise and to Spark Interest in Hard Courses

Mr. Summers, the science tutor, helps a chemistry student with some perplexing gas law problems.

Along with a new term in January, five tutors were added to the staff at I.A.S.H.S. to aid students in improving their grades. Meeting with their pupils in the library during study halls were: Miss Sink, math; Mr. Wolfe, English; Mr. Koslow, social science; Mr. Summers, science; and Miss Capizzi, counseling. The hope of this team was to spark an interest in a subject that had once given a student difficulty.

One of the busiest and most talented members of the faculty this past year was Mr. Frank Shaffer. Teaching his elective art classes kept him on his toes throughout the day, but after-school-activities called for his abilities, too. Each time a play was being staged, Mr. Shaffer took charge of the time-consuming task of building scenery and props. Somehow, in his few spare moments, he also found time to change the showcase of student art displays in the Commons, and to sponsor the Miniature Model Motoring Club during activity period on Tuesdays. Another job that occupied time was that of sports writer for the Indiana Evening Gazette during football season. His detailed accounts of the Li'l Injun games could be found in the paper every Saturday.

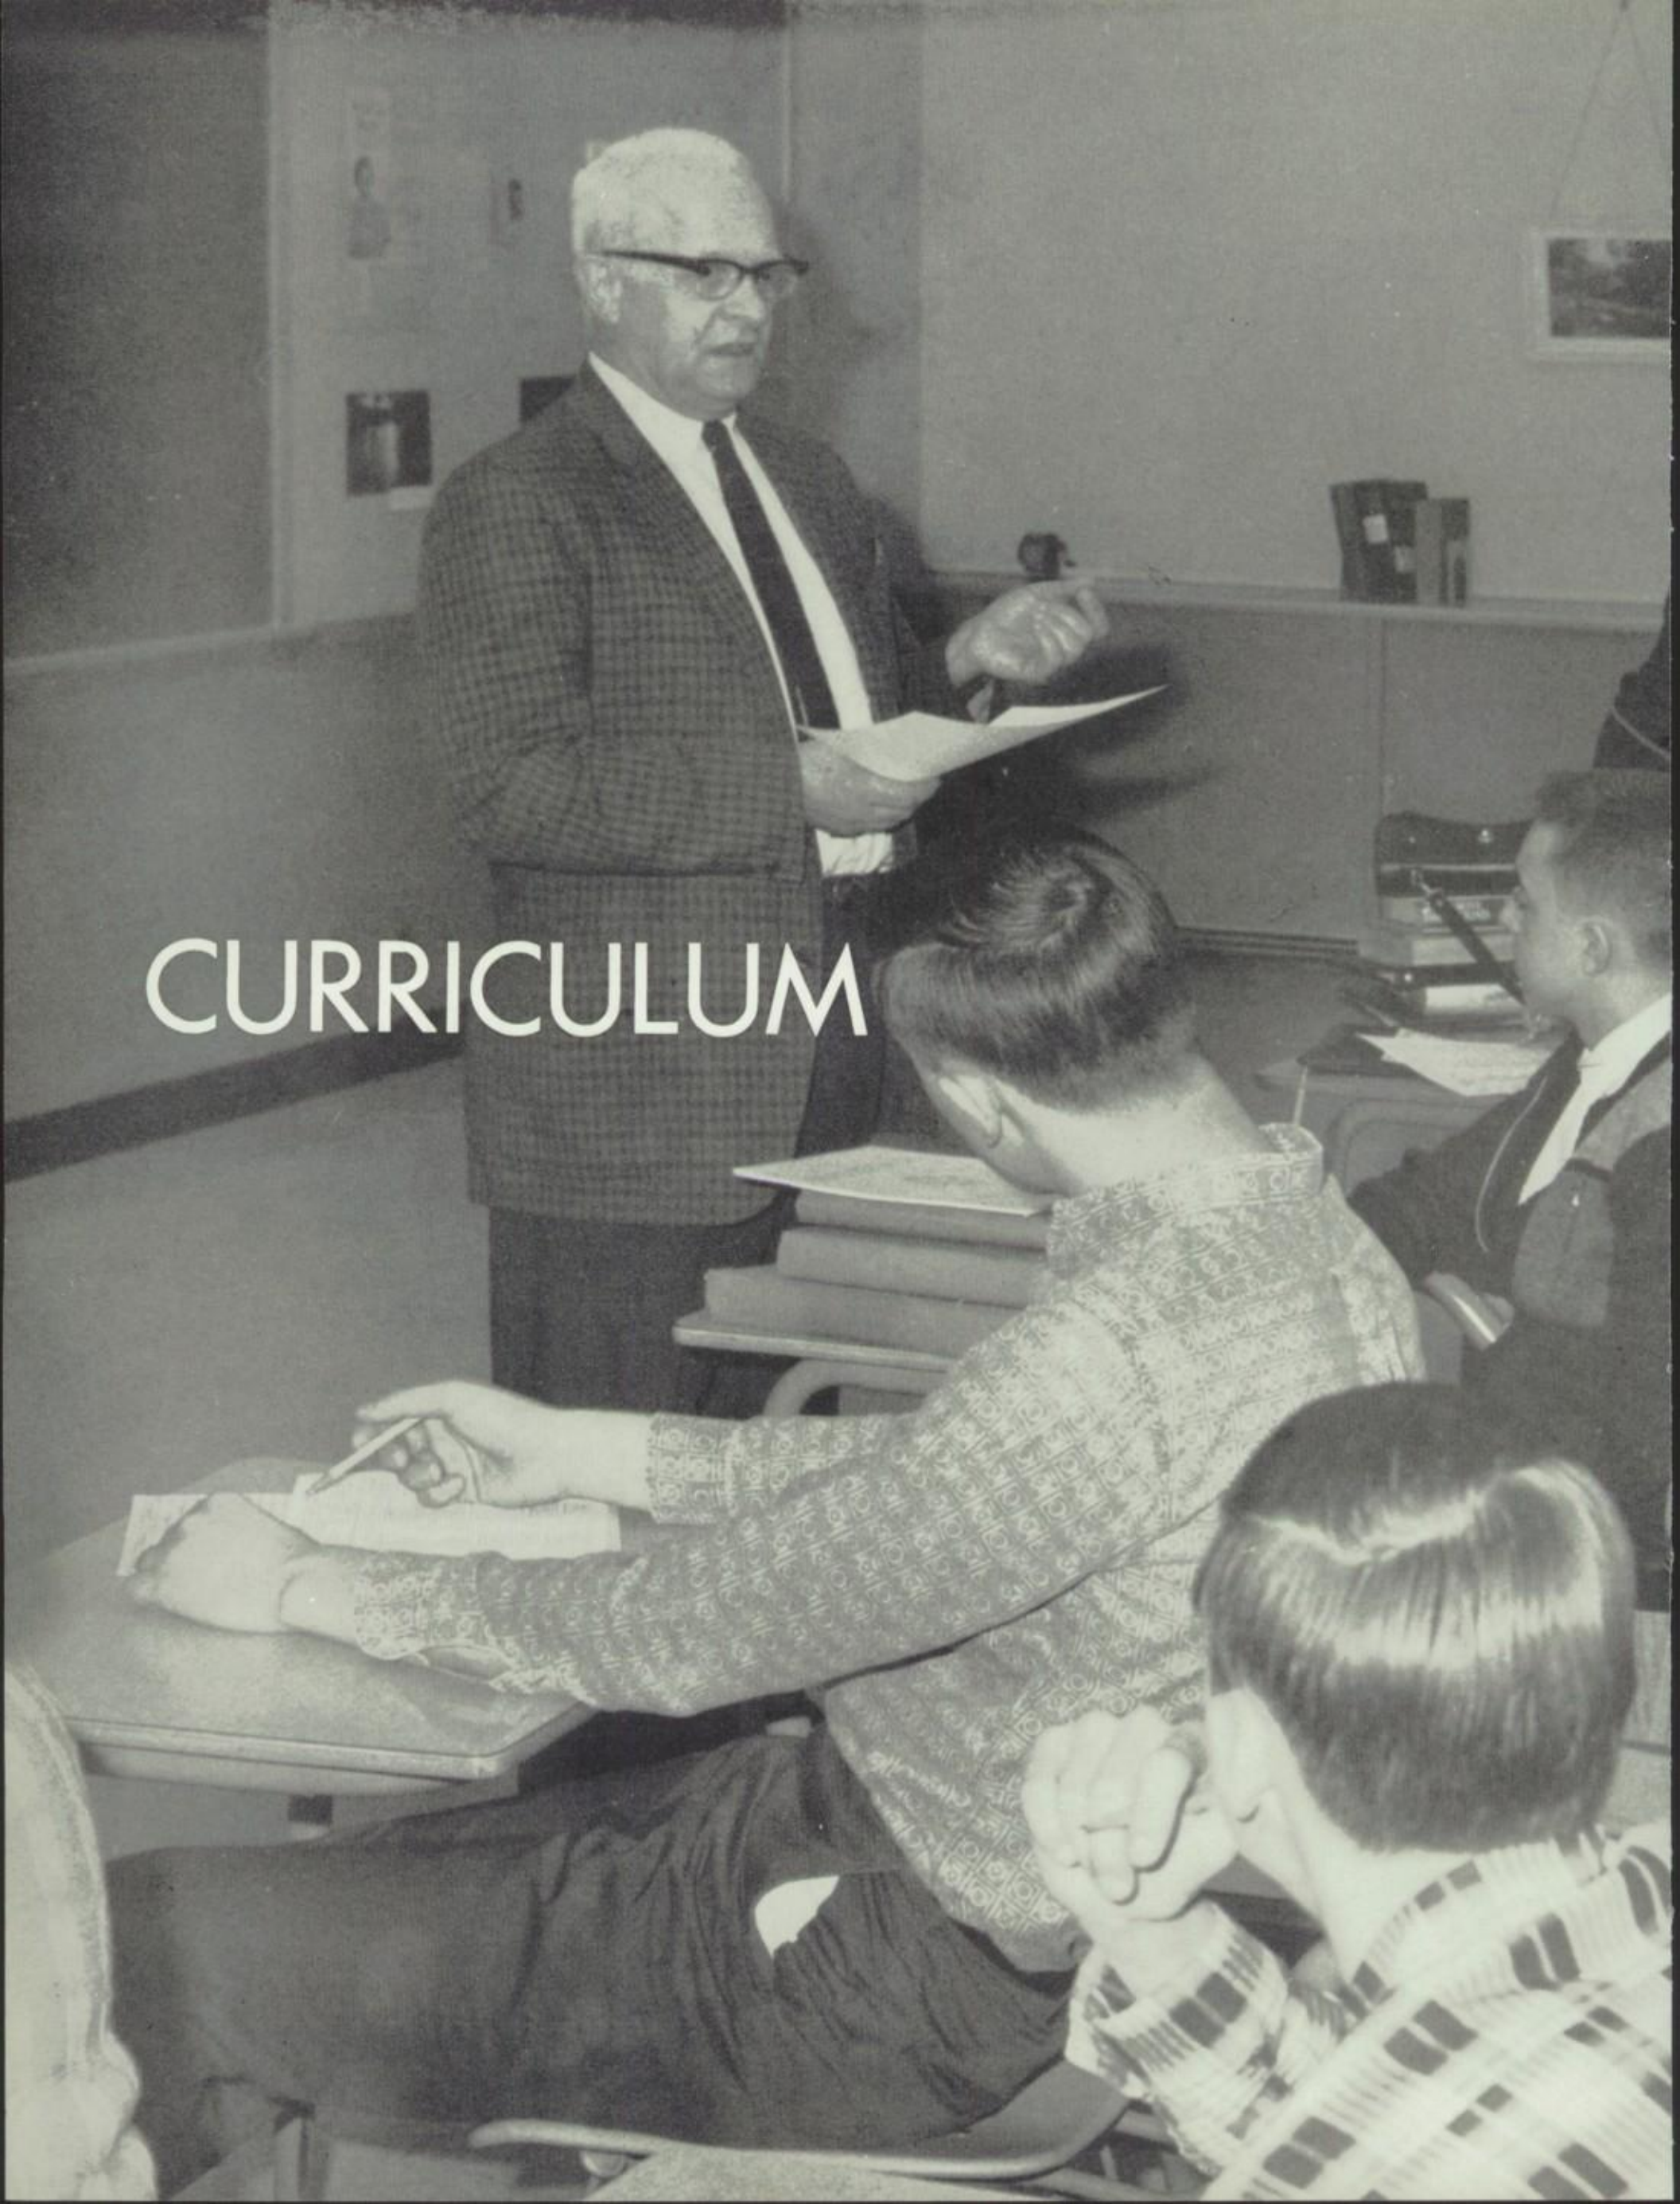
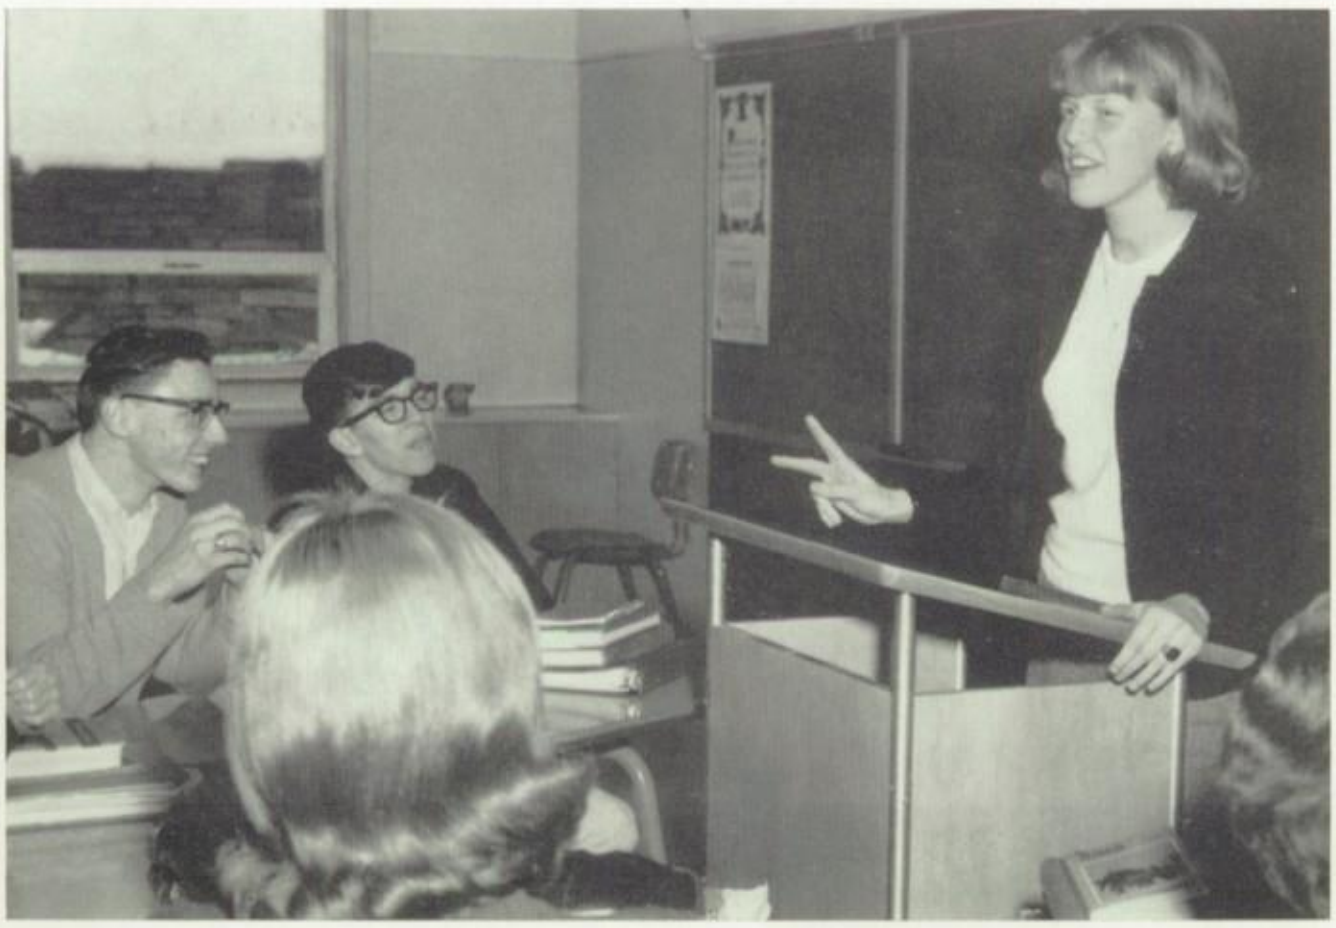
CURRICULUM



Mrs. Blair and her fourth period senior English class begin the period by discussing the themes they have written for homework.

The thirteen senior members of the yearbook staff work throughout the school year to produce the 1966 L'Indien, and at the same time train their junior assistants as editors for the following year.

With a "V for victory," Cheryl Clark amuses her listeners with her talk in Mr. Nix's Advanced Speech course.



Opposite page: Behind editor Diane Lewis, these eleven senior girls publish twelve issues of the school paper, The High Arrow.

In the various fields of English, students developed their individual interests. For seniors, studying Shakespeare's "Othello" was enhanced by seeing a film at the local theater of Laurence Olivier's portrayal of the lead in that play. Term papers were composed from ideas presented in class about the works of the great English writers from Chaucer to J. B. Priestley, or from individual readings of their choice. The doors to great American literature were opened to the juniors. They were given an opportunity to explore the lives and works of their favcrite American authors in term papers. Sophomores wrote poetry, short stories, and essays, many of which dealt with timely topics—Viet Nam, prejudice.

Two elective courses were offered in journalism. The first year dealt with fundamentals of writing and editing. In the second year, students took over the actual production of the yearbook and newspapers. Selected student wcrk was compiled in the school magazine, Senior High Signatures, by the yearbook staff apprentices. Mr. Nix's Dramatics I and II students studied the history of the theater, read modern plays, made floor plans for sets, and performed scenes from plays of their own choice on the stage. Advanced Speech classes learned the finer points of public speaking by giving the different types of speeches including one in the auditorium during class. Oral Interpretation students presented their interpretations of noteworthy prose and poetry, and ended the year with an analysis of a poem.

Electives Help to Develop Special Interests

Filmstrips, research papers, panel discussions, and maps characterized the social studies classes this term as sophomores along with juniors and seniors gained a better insight into civilization, past and present. For sophomores, tackling the United States History course from Pilgrims to Truman proved to be a challenging achievement. Government and Economics, along with a study of communism, comprised a field of interest and study for seniors. A new course for juniors, World Cultures, acquainted them with a broader understanding of the different types of culture from African tribal dances to the communist economic system. Students exerted themselves as they struggled to libraries, card files, and reference books to complete extra reports.

Electives were also a major part of this year's program. Open to all students, these subjects added variety to schedules. Geography presented the world's terrain and resources, while Pennsylvania Government taught the workings of our state government. Much time was devoted in the U. S. and World Affairs class to current events concerning the United States and foreign countries. For the first time in the history of IASHS, there was a team teaching post, filled by Mr. Hudson and Mr. Rankin. Putting together their acquired knowledge, they taught the juniors the basic elements of world history with the help of records, films, and tapes.

Along with studying atoms, molecules, and ions, chemistry students are presented with a unit on using the slide rule. Here, Buddy Bouton works a problem with the help of Mr. Nelson, while Jane Blose looks on.

With Burners and Slide

Bill Hadley seems to amuse Mr. Jones as he explains a math problem he has completed for homework.

New terms to some—logarithm, identity, and progression—became familiar words to the 776 students taking some phase of math this year. Seniors entered a new world of analytic geometry, a course using algebraic analysis to find solutions; calculus, using symbols as a method of calculation; and finite math, dealing with infinite and infinitesimal elements. Junior minds were challenged with either Algebra II, III, and IV, or Trig, and sophomores were introduced to the laws of Plane Geometry or Algebra I and II. Many of the better students entered the National Mathematics Contest, a challenging test offered to those with at least three years of algebra and one year of geometry. As an innovation in the math department, beginning in September, 1966, all students entering tenth grade will have three years of modern math.

The science department hummed with formulas and new terminology, too. Dissecting was a topic of great interest to the biology classes. Frogs, fish, clams, and worms took part in helping the sophomores learn the animal structure in their laboratory classes. Chemistry and physics classes had a double period once a week for lab work. Students taking chemistry learned properties of substances and the reactions by which they are produced, were taught how to balance chemical equations, and how to use the slide rule. Physics students were concerned with the properties of matter and energy as they conducted experiments on the mysteries of heat, light, and sound.

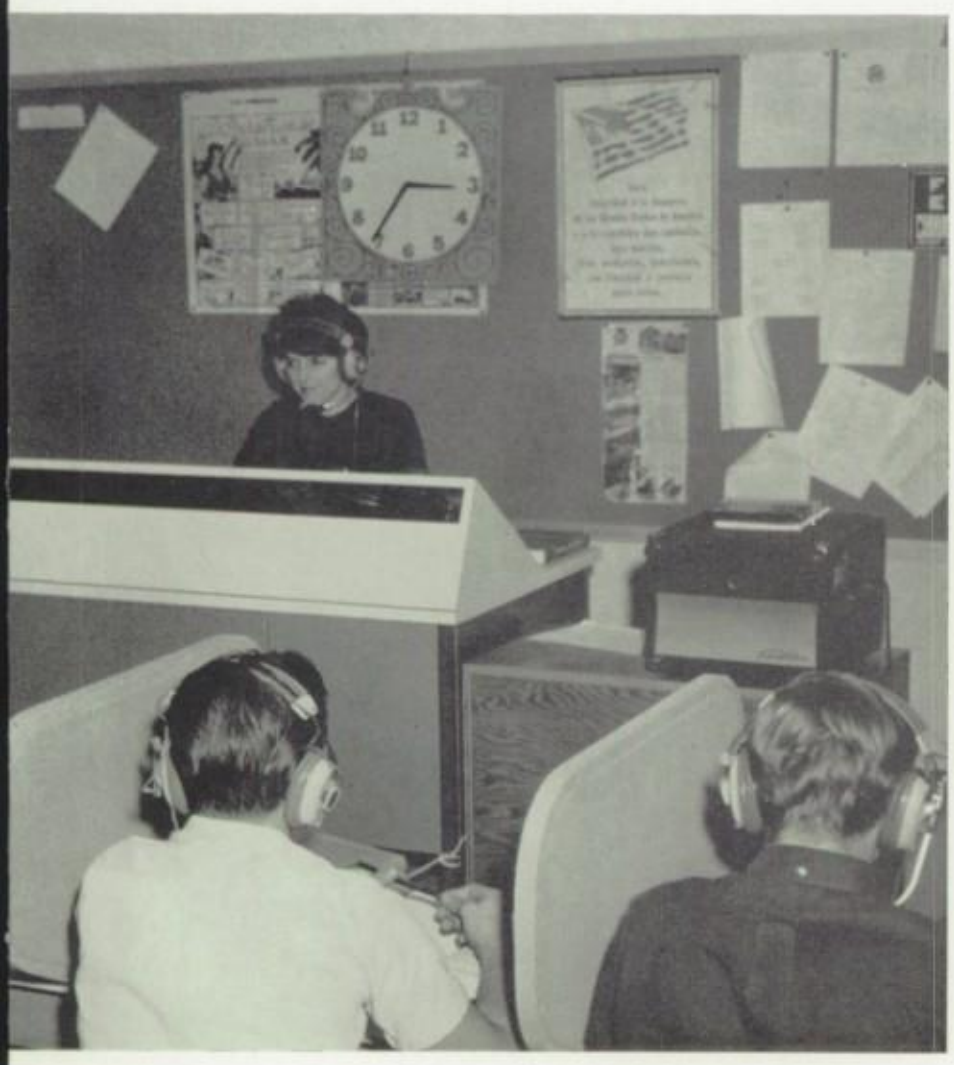
Expand Language Talent



Composing the courses that were offered to the 490 students taking one of the four languages this year were: German I, II, and III; Spanish I, II, and III; French I, II, and III; and a two-year course of Latin. A vital phase of learning a foreign language, the laboratory, having accommodations for approximately forty students, was shared alternately by the various classes. First-year students encountered an altogether unfamiliar situation of meeting the language for the first time. Their work was stressed in areas of speaking, comprehension, and vocabulary. Latin students concentrated on translating, vocabulary, and various phases of grammar. In the second year, besides learning the mechanics, students learned about the countries and people who speak their language, and got into the finer points of pronunciation. Pupils in Latin II translated the voyage of Ulysses and the story of Julius Caesar while also learning the many irregular verb tenses. For the first time, a third year was offered in German, Spanish, and French this year. This was a more intensive study of the language while students tried their hand at reading and understanding foreign newspapers, magazines, and books, and continuing their grammar work.

Highlight Business Classes

The clicking of manual typewriters, adding machines, and I.B.M. electric typewriters could be heard coming from the rooms on the second floor designated as the Business Department. Students who enrolled in the Business Curriculum started their education in tenth grade with a course in Business Math and Typewriting I on manual typewriters. In the junior year, business students moved to I.B.M. electric typewriters. Shorthand I was offered to acquaint pupils with the shorthand characters plus beginning dictation work. Elements of Business, a semester course, taught business correspondence, business law, and economics, three areas of essential business procedure. Near the end of the second semester, juniors learned the parts of a mimeograph machine and the techniques of duplicating. Subjects such as Dictation and Transcription, Office Machines, and Bookkeeping completed the business education for seniors, and supplied them with the knowledge they needed to become successful in the business world. The Business Curriculum also placed emphasis on general office procedures and the use of office machines for those interested in clerical work. In the future, the Business Department hopes to have a shorthand laboratory, similar to the language lab, to help students advance at their own speed.

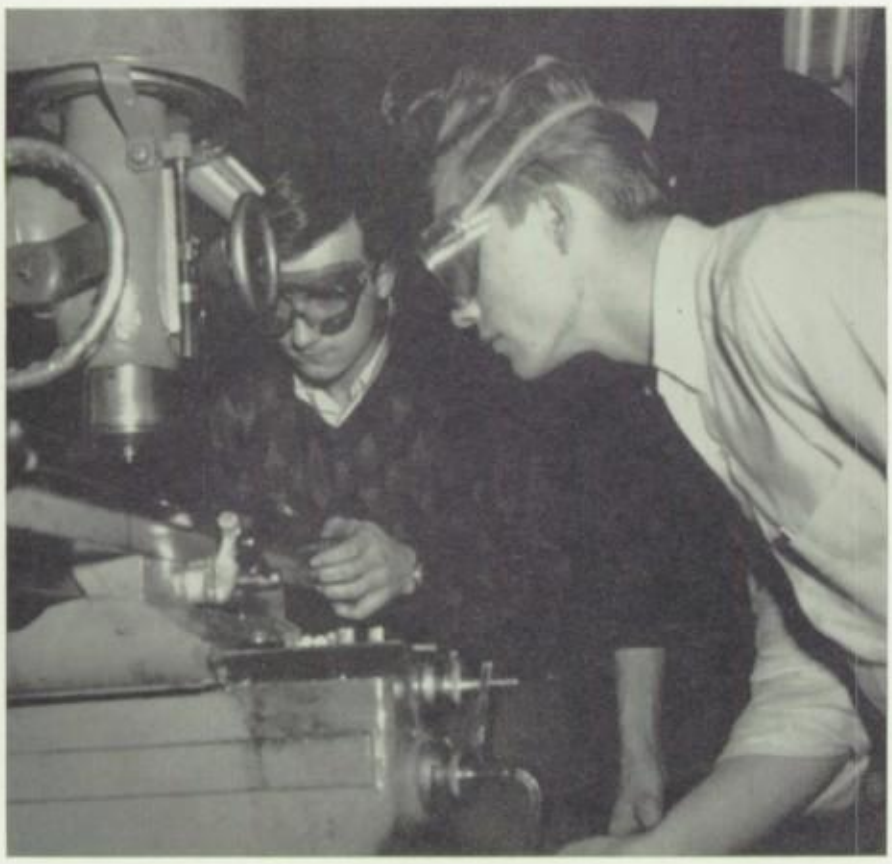
Feminine Apparel and Masculine Machinery



The 375 students enrolled in the Industrial Arts course advanced through classes such as basic wood, metal, mechanical drawing, blueprint reading, electricity, and electronics. These subjects prepared students for future industrial jobs and improved their working techniques. Modern equipment stimulated progress in the various classes, and as soon as the boys completed the basic courses, they could concentrate their efforts in one area.

Delicious aromas penetrated IASHS when the 170 Home Economics students had lab. But besides the Elective Foods course there also were available classes in clothing, home and family living, home management, family health, and child care and development. This wide variety of subjects enabled many more students to participate in departmental classes. A combination St. Valentine's Day tea and fashion show added excitement.

Vocational Agriculture classes this year attracted able students eager to work and learn. This course taught pupils the fundamentals of agriculture and business simultaneously. Modern classroom facilities—the lab, where students carried on experimental work with soil and milk testing; the shop area, used for metal and wood working; and the conference room—helped Vo. Ag. boys to learn much.

225 industrious workers gathered in the two art rooms during the eight periods a day to try their hands in some field of crafts. Behind either Mr. Shaffer or Mr. Kline, they completed projects in watercolor, oil, jewelry, pottery, ceramics, and other phases of art. Two showcases, one next to 101, and the other in the Commons, were always filled with projects completed by the elective art classes. Some of the more interested students entered a contest to design a seal for Indiana's sesquicentennial to be held in the summer. Out of those judged, Mark Altrogge's seal was found to be most creative and he was presented an award by Dr. Lawrence McVitty, an art instructor at I. U. P.

Mr. Pollock turned out to be the "lone eagle" of the Music Department this year as he was the only instructor to 350 musically inclined students. Nothing was left behind, though, as the choruses, Glee Clubs, and the Melody Maids were still offered. During football season, Mr. Pollock took charge of the Marching Band and worked out routines for the half-time entertainment. Students also took advantage of A Capella Choir, Stage Band, and Orchestra to expand their musical interests.

by Gym and Driver Ed.

The same activities and the same games were found amid many changes in the Physical Education Department this year. The biggest difference was the change in the number of periods a week. One more day was added to the two already established, making three classes a week. Sophomores, juniors, and senior girls, behind either Mrs. Scerbo or Mr. Lengel, painfully went through the seemingly endless exercises that started each class. During the year, they bettered their skills in volleyball, basketball, softball, and soccer. Many bruised legs were seen when the unit on field hockey rolled around as girls bravely played against boys, introducing the first co-ed gym classes to IASHS. The boys developed more muscles this year by spending quite a bit of time on the apparatus, and going through a series of tests.

In the Driver Education course this year, Mr. Wilt had to tackle the problem of teaching this class single-handedly, as Mr. Simms was transferred to the junior high. Not only did he have to cope with beginning drivers, but on Fridays he instructed all sophomores in the classroom portion of this course. Here, students were made aware of the rules of safe driving through film strips, movies, and discussions. As always, Mr. Wilt had the best of equipment working for him. Two new cars, one standard and one automatic, were donated by local dealers. The learners were taught the fundamentals of driving the car and handling it in traffic.

Receiving the Key to the Future, Seniors

On Sunday, June 5, at three o'clock, 313 seniors began to march down the aisles in Fisher Auditorium to the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance." Before they were seated, John Lambert gave the opening prayer, and then Michael Vaughn introduced the speakers to the audience. The speeches were presented by Ray Cheely, Deborah Luxenberg, and Kerry Simpson. Mr. McGee then declared that the class had met the qualifications for graduation. Dr. Getts, assisted by Kandice Tyger, Jay Stump, and Jon Lambert, awarded a scroll to each member of the class. This was Dr. Getts's last year, as Superintendent of Schools, to award diplomas to graduates of Indiana Area Senior High School.

The class of sixty-six met many stumbling blocks throughout the year. They had to relive the days of Shakespeare by reading "Othello". They learned what caused recessions and inflation and also how to file their income tax returns. Some discovered the world of formulas in chemistry while others battled theorems in physics. A few advanced mathematicians took a semester course in finite math. Yet they all managed to take time out to vote for their class color, navy blue and yellow; their flower, dogwood blossoms; and class motto, "Character is a victory not a gift." They even had a lot of fun the day Keith and Ken Weaver switched classes for the day.

Elections, English, Electives for Juniors

As the first days of school opened, juniors found themselves surrounded by a multitude of challenging situations. Chemistry, trig, and world cultures added new variety to their daily routines. Juniors worked on the yearbook and newspaper staffs as apprentices preparing for the following year, when they would assume the staff positions. Tuberculosis skin tests and physicals were administered to the class. Later in the year, new majorettes and cheerleading positions were announced. Vicki Belash was chosen cheerleading captain and Susan Burns, captain of the majorettes. On April 21, twenty-one new junior members were inducted into the National Honor Society. The Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test and College Entrance Exams confronted juniors who were in hopes of scoring well. As the year drew to a close, student council elections were held with Ed Morris winning the office of President. Debbie Kunkle and Bill Darr won the traditional positions of mascots.

Dr. Robert Cronauer of Indiana University of Pennsylvania spends a whole day demonstrating the techniques he uses in creating his prize-winning paintings. Intent juniors hope they'll remember just how all of this is done.

Civil War in Race between English and History

Shuffling through crowded I.A.S.H. halls, 350 excited sophomores rushed to attend classes this year. Dissecting worms, clams, fish, and frogs highlighted biology classes for some students while others in Mr. Harmon's chemistry classes struggled to memorize valences, formulas, and equations. English classes devoted much time to reading and interpreting "JULIUS CAESAR"; language classes stimulated interest in foreign lands and cultures. The outcome of the Civil War remains the same but inspiring teachers drew students into the drama of this crucial period in our history. A variety of challenging math courses was available, from geometry to business math, giving pupils a solid math foundation. "Tention! Ten four-count burpies. Ready. Begin!" Thus Mr. Lengel's commanding voice led the girls' gym classes into good physical condition. Girls' protests echoed through the halls against such strenuous exercise. Sophomores leaped over the hurdles to a successful year.

Shuffling, scuffling, through the crowded halls every forty-five minutes were 1,948 feet. Girls, decked out in loafers, scurried to their next class during the five minute break or stopped directly in the middle of the halls to chat with friends. Boys trudged along in Beatle boots or tennis shoes. Forgetful females lumbered along in snow boots. Coming from the gym, athletes displayed their ability to run the fifty yard dash to the second floor. Lines at water fountains slowed down the pace of many. Open lockers added to the congestion by narrowing the corridors from eight feet to six.

Student Council, sponsored by Mrs. Mary Recupero, reached its stride in organizing Homecoming Week End when Kathy Anderson, Homecoming Queen, had Pat Klawuhn and Connie Neal as her court. After the Council completed Homecoming activities, it began work on numerous service projects. In order to form committees for the projects, the Council met one class period each Wednesday in the auditorium. One of the first accomplishments of the Council was the installation of a school mailbox. Members also took turns operating a store where pencils, paper, and book covers could be purchased. Library aides and office messengers, scheduled by Student Council, were on duty during each class period. In March, members served as hosts and guides for the school evaluators. Members initiated a drive to buy chairs for the Commons. Five lively pep rallies and an assembly on Project Apollo were presented by the Council. Several sections of the school constitution were revised and submitted to the student body.

The Council launched a paper-back book sale during the second quarter. A set of steps, installed by members in the student parking lot, eliminated muddy foot prints. A Spring Week End, the first of its kind, held April 18-23, gave students an opportunity to sport their new spring outfits on dress-up day. A locker cleaning day was ordered for Tuesday during activity period, and Wednesday was color day. To round out the week, a computer dance was held on Friday. Students filled out I.B.M. cards earlier in the week and the results were posted at the dance. Groans and shrieks echoed from the Commons as the students discovered who their perfect match was. Student Council elections were held on May 12, to end the year's activities. Edward Morris was elected next year's president, with Jack Potter vice-president.

Character, scholarship, leadership, and service constituted the measuring stick for the Senior National Honor Society membership. A committee composed of faculty members chose the candidates who were then rated by teachers having the candidates in class. Only a small percentage of students was elected. Those who showed the most promise in future perfection of the four values held by this honorary club gained membership. The club, under the guidance of Miss Laura Church, met on March 10, 1966 at a dinner-meeting and planned their induction assembly. On April 21 twenty juniors and twelve seniors were added to the old membership of twenty-one, in a candlelight ceremony presented to both assemblies.

This year's officers—President Alan Charlson, Vice-President Bev Grau, Secretary Kandy Tyger, and Treasurer Judy Woodburn—were in charge of this program. Afterwards a tea was held in the library for all the members and their parents. The senior members of Honor Society were honored on April 25 at the annual Scholastic Recognition Dinner given by the Indiana Kiwanis Club. Newly elected officers for next year are President Don Burggraf, Vice-President Bob Volkin, Secretary Kathy Coleman, Treasurer Carole Cheely, and Ushers Tom Wellen and Kirk Risinger.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Jeanne Creps, Twelfth Grade Tri-Hi-Y was one of the most active clubs in our school. Their initial project was the induction of new members. Club President Nancy Heaton along with Vice-President Ann Clement, Secretary Sheri Gerheim, Treasurer Marti Hassler, and Chaplain Bev Grau, conducted the ceremony in the auditorium. In November, several girls attended a district conference held in Butler. Stuffing envelopes with Christmas seals to be mailed to homes in Indiana, and caroling at the homes of shut-ins in zero weather were December projects. Along with the Senior Class, Tri-Hi-Y 12 sponsored the annual Senior Class Dance held on April 2 in the Commons. Pickett Place was the theme of this semi-formal dance. Club members helped to make the giant-sized tulips, adorning the Commons, and served on refreshment and entertainment committees. To raise money for the dance, an after-game dance was sponsored by the club in February. Cheryl Clark and Jean Enderlein represented the country of Mauritania at the mock United Nations Assembly in Harrisburg on March 10, 11, 12. The girls dressed in the native costume of this northwestern African country. To climax the year, a dinner was held at Bruno's on May 17.

Sponsored by Miss Sara Stevenson, the Eleventh Grade Tri-Hi-Y kept busy with several service projects. On December 19 the club joined with the Twelfth Grade Tri-Hi-Y to go Christmas caroling at the homes of shut-ins. Other projects included stuffing envelopes for the Christmas Seals Campaign. A joint panel discussion held in the auditorium with the twelfth grade club gave members a chance to express their opinions on dating and marriage. On March 10, 11, 12, Marilyn McGill went with twelfth grade representatives to the mock United Nations Assembly in Harrisburg. In April, members served as hostesses for the Older Girls' Conference held at the Holiday Inn. As a money-making project, the club sponsored a "gym suit wash." Dirty gym suits were collected and washed by club members for a quarter apiece. President Sandi Varner, with the help of Vice-President Debbie Mabon, Secretary Nancy Armour, Treasurer Mary Irvin, and Chaplain Sue Fiscus, led the club to complete these projects.

Tenth Grade Tri-Hi-Y underwent a major change this year: The organization split into two separate clubs co-functioning as one. Mrs. Arveta DeGaetano and Mrs. Lydia McCoy, sponsors, stimulated enthusiasm in club activities. Officers in Mrs. DeGaetano's group included Joyce Botsford, vice-president; Peggy Altemus, assistant secretary; Linda Baily, treasurer; and Peggy Snyder, chaplain. Mrs. McCoy's group's officers were Pat Grey, president; Janis Stile, secretary; Marian Popely, assistant treasurer; and Robin Reid, assistant chaplain. A joint project consisted of making Christmas cards for the dinner trays at the hospital. Making corsages for Mother's Day and Christmas cards for next year kept members busy in the spring.

F. H. A. and F. F. A. Strengthen Tomorrow's Leaders

Committees plan the spring F.H.A. picnic.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Janet Daugherty, the Future Homemakers of America initiated the new year with a bake sale and cookbook drive. The club officers —Margaret Taylor, president; Marcy Ducca, vice-president; Margaret Lauer, secretary; and Linda Bash, treasurer—planned activities and guided club members. During January, Mrs. Daugherty and six girls traveled to the Farm Show in Harrisburg to join in a square dance contest with the Future Farmers of America. The six girls attending included Dawna Baker, Margaret Lauer, Linda Corbelli, Rosemary Callahan, Ruth Martin, and Karen Lockard. Other activities included going Christmas caroling, having a bowling party, and attending a county conference. Dawna Baker served as state F.H.A. secretary for the 1965-66 term.

Future Farmers of America, under the guidance of Mr. James McMullen, consisted of all boys who studied vocational agriculture. Service projects completed by the club were the repairing of Christmas toys for the Lions Club and soliciting for the Easter Seals drive. Members took part in F.F.A. Week at Penn State, the Parliamentary Procedure contest at Penn Run, the Mid-Winter Convention at Harrisburg, and the Leadership Training Camp. George Schleicher, Indiana's representative, placed first in the Public Speaking Contest. Richard Elkin was chosen F.F.A. Keystone Farmer and Robert Casella was picked as the F.F.A. State Delegate at the State Farm Show. The club also placed third in the square dance contest. Because of their ability to sell, the club was awarded the "Farm Journal" Sales Trophy.

Future Teachers and Future Business Leaders

Future Teachers of America, under the supervision of Mr. Richard Malacarne, keyed their year's activities to the theme, "Thoughts for Planning Ahead." Plans began in October for the annual Tinsel Ball. The decoration committee chose "Winter Wonderland" as the theme of this dance held December 11 in the Commons. Many couples danced to music provided by the Gables. F.T.A. members took part in a panel discussion with the second semester student teachers. On April 2 a bus was chartered and twenty members attended a convention at Ferndale-Dale High School. Linda Roof presided at this conference as this year's district president. Debbie Kunkle was elected next year's district secretary. At the May meeting, Mrs. Jeanne Creps and Mr. John Sinclair were presented the Teacher of the Year Award.

Learn Basics to Build Careers

Girls sporting gym suits, old shoes, thick make-up, and teased hair invaded the Commons on November 2 to be initiated into Future Business Leaders of America. After initiation, work began on the Student Directory. During the day and after school, Mrs. DeGaetano and club members typed, numbered pages, and designed a cover for the directories. These booklets, containing the names, addresses, and phone numbers of all senior high students, were sold for fifteen cents a copy. Meeting on the first Tuesday of each month, the club was led by President Peggy Boucher, Vice-President Sandi Varner, Secretary Jeanne Butterworth, and Treasurer Rose D'Amico. The girls worked ambitiously preparing displays for the business department showcase, and they participated in the Easter Seals Tag Day on April 2. At the Awards Assembly, May 31, Mr. Lowell Stahlman, club sponsor, presented a fifty dollar award to Jeanne Butterworth, the most outstanding senior in the Business Curriculum.

Who were those lovely females running around the gym on November 24? New students? No, they were the thirty-three new members of the Varsity "I" Club participating in the annual initiation. These letter winners performed before the crowd with singing, playing leap frog, and pushing peanuts with their noses. To top off Varsity "I" Night, Indiana faculty members defeated Butler faculty in a spectacular basketball game. Along with launching the basketball season, the club, led by officers Rob Boden, president; Ralph Craig, vice-president; Rick Skinner, secretary; and Bob Casella, sergeant-at-arms, sold refreshments at athletic contests and provided the two-day wrestling tournament programs. In addition to receiving athletic letters, the twenty-four senior boys were presented with the coveted red and black jackets in recognition of their athletic contributions.

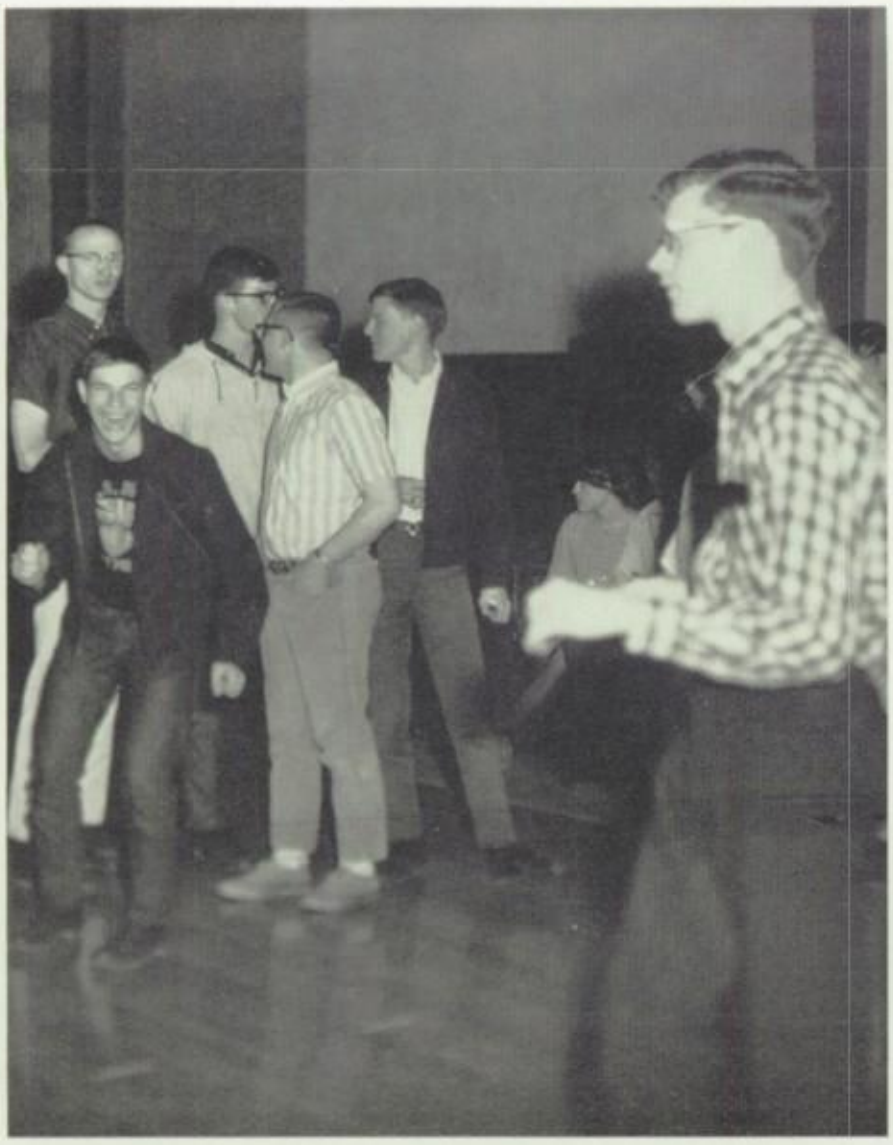
Service, Achievement Mark Ambitious Goals



In activities ranging from ringing Christmas bells for the Salvation Army to raising and lowering the flag each day, Key Club provided service to the community and school. Guiding the club as officers were Robert Boden, president; Gary Juart, vice-president; Bill Hadley, secretary; and John Lambert, treasurer. Mr. Daniel Jones replaced Mr. VanDyke as the club sponsor. Other activities that Key Club participated in included scrubbing refuse cans from Philadelphia Street and helping with the Christmas Angel Project. "Key Club Night," March 18, highlighted the year's activities. New members were initiated and an exciting basketball game between the faculty and club members added spirit to the evening. In the final seconds of the game the faculty tipped one in to win the contest. During Easter vacation, the club sponsored a car wash. As their last activity, members attended a convention, April 29, 30, and May 1, in Philadelphia.

Red Cross Inspires Able Students to Serve

Receiving the Parents' Magazine Youth Group Achievement Award for their work at Indian Haven inspired Red Cross members to work diligently. Miss Thelma Bell and Mrs. Elizabeth Crozier, sponsors, aided club officers in planning club activities. In December, members launched the Voices from Home project in the Red Cross building. Relatives and friends could tape a five-minute message to servicemen overseas. Also during December, members filled flannel horse heads with candy canes and distributed them to children in the hospital. Other service projects included typing and cleaning thermometers at the Blood Mobile and at the Bleed-In at Indiana University. To raise money for their activities, members sponsored a St. Patrick's Day dance and a bake sale.

In order to accommodate the large number of students interested in the Art Club, the club divided into two groups. Both groups met under the direction of Mr. Robert Kline and worked jointly on the projects of the year. Three committees—the Program Committee, the Project Committee, and the Display Committee—carried out club projects. Activities of the year included selling school pennants on October 14, 15 which netted fifty dollars, and keeping the showcases full of eyecatching displays throughout the year. One of the more colorful displays was the one on South America. It contained blankets and pottery brought to school by students who had visited South America the previous summer. The year brought a lot of work for this year's officers who were President Kandy Tyger, Vice-President Judy Woodburn, and Secretary-Treasurer Niki Roumm. Art Club met on the first and third Tuesday of each month.

Service and Training

In its first year Nurses Club concentrated on organization procedures. Sponsored by Mrs. Dorothy Salsgiver, the club met on the first and third Tuesday. As its initial activity the club elected officers. Leading the club this year were President Sheila Lundstrom, Vice-President Patty Biricocchi, and Secretary-Treasurer Joyce Gottardi. To gain experience in nursing, many of the members helped Mrs. Salsgiver and Dr. Mitchell with the eleventh grade physicals. The girls inspected Indiana Hospital and the Nurses' Residence. As a result of this trip many members volunteered to work in the Hospital pantry or to be Candy Stripers. During Christmas, the club decorated States' Rest Home. Several of the girls made trips to Mercy Hospital in Johnstown and to West Penn Hospital in Pittsburgh to tour the nursing schools. The girls listened to several speakers throughout the year, including a public health nurse who explained many of the rewards and problems of a nursing career. As their final project, members prepared a bulletin board for the showcase in the Commons.

Organizations Help with School Functions

Shelving books, helping students in search of books, and locating needed magazines and newspapers (especially at term paper time) were several duties of the Library Aides. The twenty-one members, representatives of Student Council and students, gave up at least one study hall a week to help Miss Phoebe Barger, the school librarian and club sponsor. The time donated by the aides made open shelves possible this year. The aides also designed bulletin boards, delivered library permits to study hall teachers, straightened books and magazines, and checked out books. Through this work, the Library Aides gained useful insight into the functions of a library.

Science Club Probes For Future Challenges

Under the supervision of Mr. Daniel Harmon, Science Club met every first and third Tuesday to discuss the world's recent scientific discoveries. Club officers—President Dave Scott, Vice-President Don Burggraf, Secretary Tom Shipley, and Treasurer Jude Skowron—made arrangements for the entire organization to take a field trip to Monroeville. There they toured Westinghouse's Heavy Equipment Division. Later in the day, they visited Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh. At school meetings, movies and filmstrips were shown on scientific subjects, ranging from cancer, one of medicine's most prominent and deadly enemies, to the DEW line, America's early warning system in Canada.

Camera Club Photos Aid School Publications

Meeting seventh period each day, Camera Club, under the sponsorship of Mr. John Sinclair, took pictures for the "High Arrow" and "L'Indien" staffs. These boys not only took the photos which appeared in the journalism publications, but they printed, enlarged, and sold them to their subjects, as well. Since the membership of the club was limited, there were only three officers: President Tom Hilliard, Vice-President Mike Vaughn, and Secretary-Treasurer Mike Lewine. Assisting the officers in the picture taking were Tom Nastase, Greg Spinelli, and Greg Smith. At all school functions these photographers appeared with battery over shoulder and camera in hand. Camera Club also took pictures for many private organizations in the community. During their study halls, members of this club were privileged to go to the dark room either to work on photography or to finish their homework.

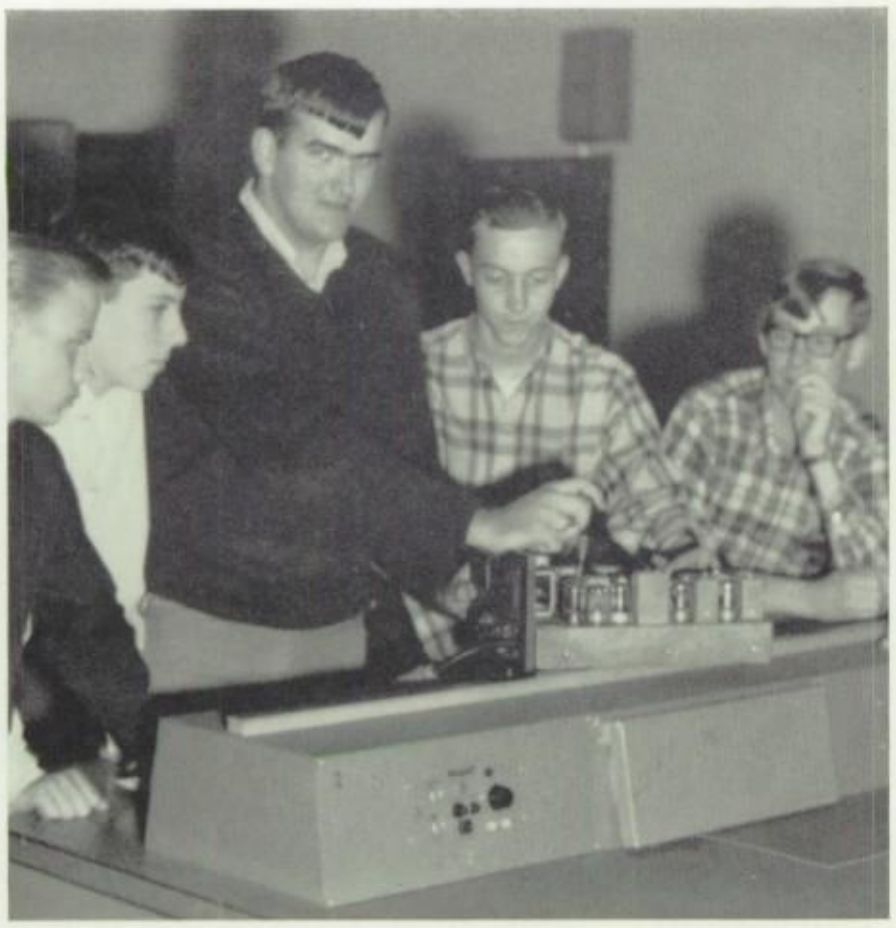
Games of Strategy Develop Talents

"One heart," "I pass"—these phrases echoed from the library every first and third Tuesday during the Bridge Club meeting. Mrs. Sandra Shaffer, sponsor, taught tyros while Mr. Mumper, a first semester student teacher, supervised the skilled players in games. By the end of May, all players were actively engaged in matches. Twenty-five participants of Chess Club headed by President Brian Turley, Vice-President Ruth Patterson and Club Sponsor Mr. Ralph Blakely took part in games within the club and in Indiana Recreation Center matches. The club also engaged in four matches with Marion Center High School. Although Indiana was overtaken each time, it was a profitable year for novices who learned the techniques of chess.



Mike Gardner controls his car in a trial run.

Because of their interest in electronics, about two dozen I.A.S.H.S. boys formed the Ham Radio Club and built a station. The Federal Communications Commission assigned a number to the school and issued licenses to boys who learned the code, theory, and transmitting and receiving skills. This made Indiana High School one of the few schools in the area to have such a communicating station. Members realized the value of radio relay stations in summoning help during the blackout in the northeastern United States, November 9, 1965.

Miniature Model Motoring Club, led by Wayne Gorell and sponsored by Mr. Frank Shaffer conducted activities in racing model cars. The three lane grand prix track located in the school garage included straight stretches, thirteen curves and a total lap distance of 100 feet. Three types of racing were: sports competition, grand touring and point totals. The gymnasium was transformed into the "Purple Turkey" when the club sponsored an after game dance.

Sendracs Membership Totals 182 This Year

Giving up study halls to be back stage whenever they were needed to help prepare for assemblies or to do odd jobs around the auditorium, the Stage Crew made themselves invaluable. They also managed lights, props, and curtains for the four Sendracs productions. Everyone of the fourteen members learned how to operate the stage equipment, the switchboard, and the overhead lights. Mr. James Nix, advisor for both Stage Crew and Sendracs, gave orders on the closed circuit stage and auditorium telephones.

A new constitution gave Sendracs a different image. Two kinds of members made up the club—the producing members, who worked on plays in all capacities from designing sets to acting, and the non-producing members, who attended meetings and plays. Through the combined efforts of Stage Crew and Sendracs, four plays were presented during the year: "Mrs. McThing," "The Rivals," "Three Tonight," and "Damn Yankees."

The curtain opened, the audience hushed as the lights dimed for this year's first Sendracs production, "Mrs. McThing", a comedy-fantasy, written by Mary Coyle Chase and directed by James Nix. Presented on November 18, 19, and 20, the play centered around the household of Mrs. Larue (Kandy Tyger), her young son Howie, and the pranks of a naughty witch and a beautiful witch.

Powdered wigs, breeches, and three-cornered hats became familiar sights to I.A.S.H.S. students as Sendracs presented the second play of the year, "The Rivals" by Richard Brindley Sheridan on January 20, 21, and 22. Under the direction of Mr. James Nix, this seventeenth century comedy concerned a hilarious mix-up created by the double identity assumed by Cam Davis, as Captain Absolute and Ensign Beverly and the actions of Mrs. Malaprop, a match-making aunt (Rheta Downey).

"Three-Tonight"

The executioner raises his axe to cut off Joy's head. (The Stolen Prince)

"Three Tonight" was a delightful combination of three one-act plays. The first of these plays was the "Stolen Prince", a fantasy; next came "The Leader"; and finally, "Archie and Mehitabel", a musical comedy. Mr. Pollock's Stage Band accompanied the cast of "Archie and Mehitabel." Dorothy Stump was in charge of the choreography for the three plays and Kandy Tyger headed the Set Crew. Mr. Frank Shaffer supervised the set construction. Other contributors to the production were Mr. Nix's Stage Crew, the make-up committee, the publicity committee, and the costume crew, under the guidance of Mrs. Betty Wood.

"Damn Yankees", a musical comedy by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross, slugged a homerun into the hearts of a near capacity audience on May 26, 27, 28 in the auditorium. The play revolved around Joe Boyd (Nick Bonarrigo), an avid baseball fan of the Washington Senators, who proclaimed he would sell his soul to the devil if the Senators would beat the Yankees and win the pennant. Mr. Applegate, the devil (Kerry Simpson), transformed Joe Boyd into a young baseball player, Joe Hardy (Dave Lindstrom). Applegate gave Joe an escape clause whereby he could return to his original self. The hilarious events that followed dealt with Applegate's frantic attempts to keep Joe's soul and the antics of Lola (Debbie Kunkle), a conspirator of the devil, who tried to divert Joe from using the escape clause. After an exciting game, the Senators won the pennant and Joe kept his soul. With the help of Mr. James Nix, director; Mr. George Pollock, stage band director; and Mr. Frank Shaffer, set director, the cast, stage crew, stage band, and production staff combined to present the final play of the year.

"Sounding Brass," "Octave Jump," and "Host of Freedom"—several songs performed by the Band—aroused spirit in the students as they proudly watched the formation of the traditional "I." Beginning with their performance during Band Night at the Indiana County Fair, the fifty-five members, directed by Mr. George Pollock and Drum Major Jon Fennell, presented eight original halftime shows and appeared in pep assemblies and parades. At the closing home football game, the crowd saluted senior band members in recognition of their last appearance. On November 19 Band members and their guests celebrated with a hayride at Streams' farm. To climax the year, the annual Spring Concert was presented on April 29.

1966-67 MAJORETTES: Beverly Irvin, Susan Longwill, Dorina Bruce, Sandi Varner, Mary Irvin, Alida Pulsinelli, Sue Kleba, Mary Ann Oliverio, Kathy Cummins, and kneeling in front, Captain Susan Burns.

"Five-Foot Two," "Hi Neighbor," and "Apple Tree" were some of the routines which became familiar to our ten peppy Majorettes last summer. They practiced daily for halftime shows, parades, and pep assemblies. Under captain Jeanne Butterworth and co-captain Mary C. Gordon, the squad presented eight original halftime shows and appeared in Band Night at the Indiana County Fair. The four senior majorettes—Jeanne Butterworth, Mary C. Gordon, Karen Longwill, and Phyllis Putt—were honored with a dinner at Bruno's during football season. They were presented with jewelry by the underclass majorettes. At the football game that evening a Senior Salute was held during halftime for their final appearance. Beginning on November 15, forty girls began tryouts for the 1966-67 squad. After two eliminations fifteen girls remained for finals held on December 6. Girls were judged on the basis of marching and twirling, originality of a routine, poise, and appearance. These girls were graded on the point system by Mrs. Janet Dougherty, their sponsor; Mr. George Pollock; Mrs. Sandra Shaffer; Mrs. Jeanne Creps; Mr. Monroe Nelson; Mr. Frank Shaffer; and Miss Virginia Stretton. The ten receiving the most points became the new majorettes and the top scorer was automatically chosen captain. Leading the band next year will be Susan Burns, captain; Mary Irvin, co-captain; Dorina Bruce; Sandi Varner; Alida Pulsinelli; Sue Kleba; Kathy Cummins; Bev Irvin; Susan Longwill; and Mary Ann Oliverio.

After fifteen weeks of practice, the Mixed Chorus along with the other ensembles made their 1965 debut. Under the direction of Mr. George Pollock, newly in charge, the vocalists presented their annual Christmas Concert in the school auditorium. On December 22, the room was filled with strains of "It's Christmas Time Again" and "Creche Lullaby" as the Mixed Chorus performed. "The Little Drummer Boy", sung by A Cappella Choir, proved to be a favorite. The Boys Glee Club entertained with the classic "Silver Bells" as did the Girls Glee Club with the "Nutcracker Suite." "Mr. Santa" and "I'll Be Home For Christmas" sung by the thirty misses known as the Melody Maids added a light touch to the performance. A similar program was presented on the following day for the student body in two assemblies. Harry Shingledecker, Dave Coy, Chuck Kimmel, Sue Fiscus, Mary Lou Morris, and Pam Holt participated in the annual District Chorus Festival held March 24, 25, 26 in Brookville. April 15 marked the date of the Spring Concert. Highlighting the program was "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" sung by the Mixed Chorus and accompanied by two pianos, several trumpets, a piccolo, and various percussion instruments.

Ski Club was a newly formed club this year. Sponsored by Miss Virginia Stretton and Mr. John Selkirk, the club met on second and fourth Tuesdays. The membership consisted of beginning skiers, intermediate skiers, advanced skiers, and non-skiers who were eager to learn the fundamentals of the sport. During club meetings, members discussed the problems of skiing, ski techniques, and the proper use of equipment. In January Dave Lindstrom, Ann Montgomery, and Miss Stretton skied at Hidden Valley, a ski resort near Somerset. Because it was late in organizing and obtaining a charter, the club as a group did not have an opportunity to ski together; but several members and both sponsors skied throughout the winter at College Lodge and other nearby resorts.

Cheerleaders Spur

Our eight Varsity Cheerleaders, sponsored by Mrs. Georgia Scerbo and headed by Captain Linda Wellen and Co-captain Isabel Farabaugh, aroused pep and promoted school spirit throughout the year. With Leslie Clark, Bev Adams, Judy Collins, Nancy Mayer, Claudette Scholfield, and Vicki Belash, they cheered faithfully for the football, basketball, and wrestling teams. To achieve unity and perfect motion, the squad practiced during the previous summer and three days a week after school. Leading the band, the Cheerleaders marched in the Indiana University Homecoming Parade. They added a spark of life to the bonfire pep rally held in the student parking lot October 14. Red raincoats, to cope with rainy football games, were purchased with club money. New basketball megaphones and red and black uniforms were bought with the proceeds from the Football Finale Dance held in the Commons on November 10. With their original cheer, "Take Command," the girls copped a third place trophy at the cheering contest in Derry Area on November 13. Underclass Cheerleaders honored the senicr squad members—Linda Wellen, Leslie Clark, and Isabel Farabaugh—with a senior salute on February 15.

Vigorous Girls Help

With cartwheels, jumps, and leaps, the Junior Varsity Cheerleaders kept a lively pace with the Junior Varsity Football, Basketball, and Wrestling Teams. Supervised by the Varsity Cheerleaders, these peppy girls learned new cheers, motions, and field and gymnasium etiquette. They were active participants in school pep assemblies and color days. During the wrestling tournament, the flashing five were responsible for selling programs. "Hey-Hey" and "Dynamo," the most popular Varsity cheers, were turned over to the Junior Varsity squad to increase school spirit at Junior Varsity events. At the close of basketball season, the J. V.'s teamed with the Varsity to salute the three graduating seniors.

Decked out in their sharp red and black uniforms, the thirty energetic members of Pep Club were always on the scene to give our teams an extra boost. Under the leadership of President Cathy Patrick, Vice-President Betsy Moore, and Secretary-Treasurer Marilyn McGill, the club carried out an active program. A muddy powderpuff football game, planned by club members and their sponsor, Mrs. Joan Fruehstorfer, initiated the year's activities. The senior gridders and their mothers were honored at the annual Senior Salute held on October 22. The club gave corsages to the mothers and presented miniature footballs to the boys in remembrance of their last home game. Graduating members of the basketball and wrestling squads were honored in the I.A.S.H.S. gym with an impressive salute on February 11. Miss Jane Boring sponsored the club during the absence of Mrs. Fruehstorfer. Officers elected to head the club next year were President Rheta Downey, Vice-President Marilyn McGill, Secretary-Treasurer Sally Wolfe, and Recording Secretary Janis Vanderneck.

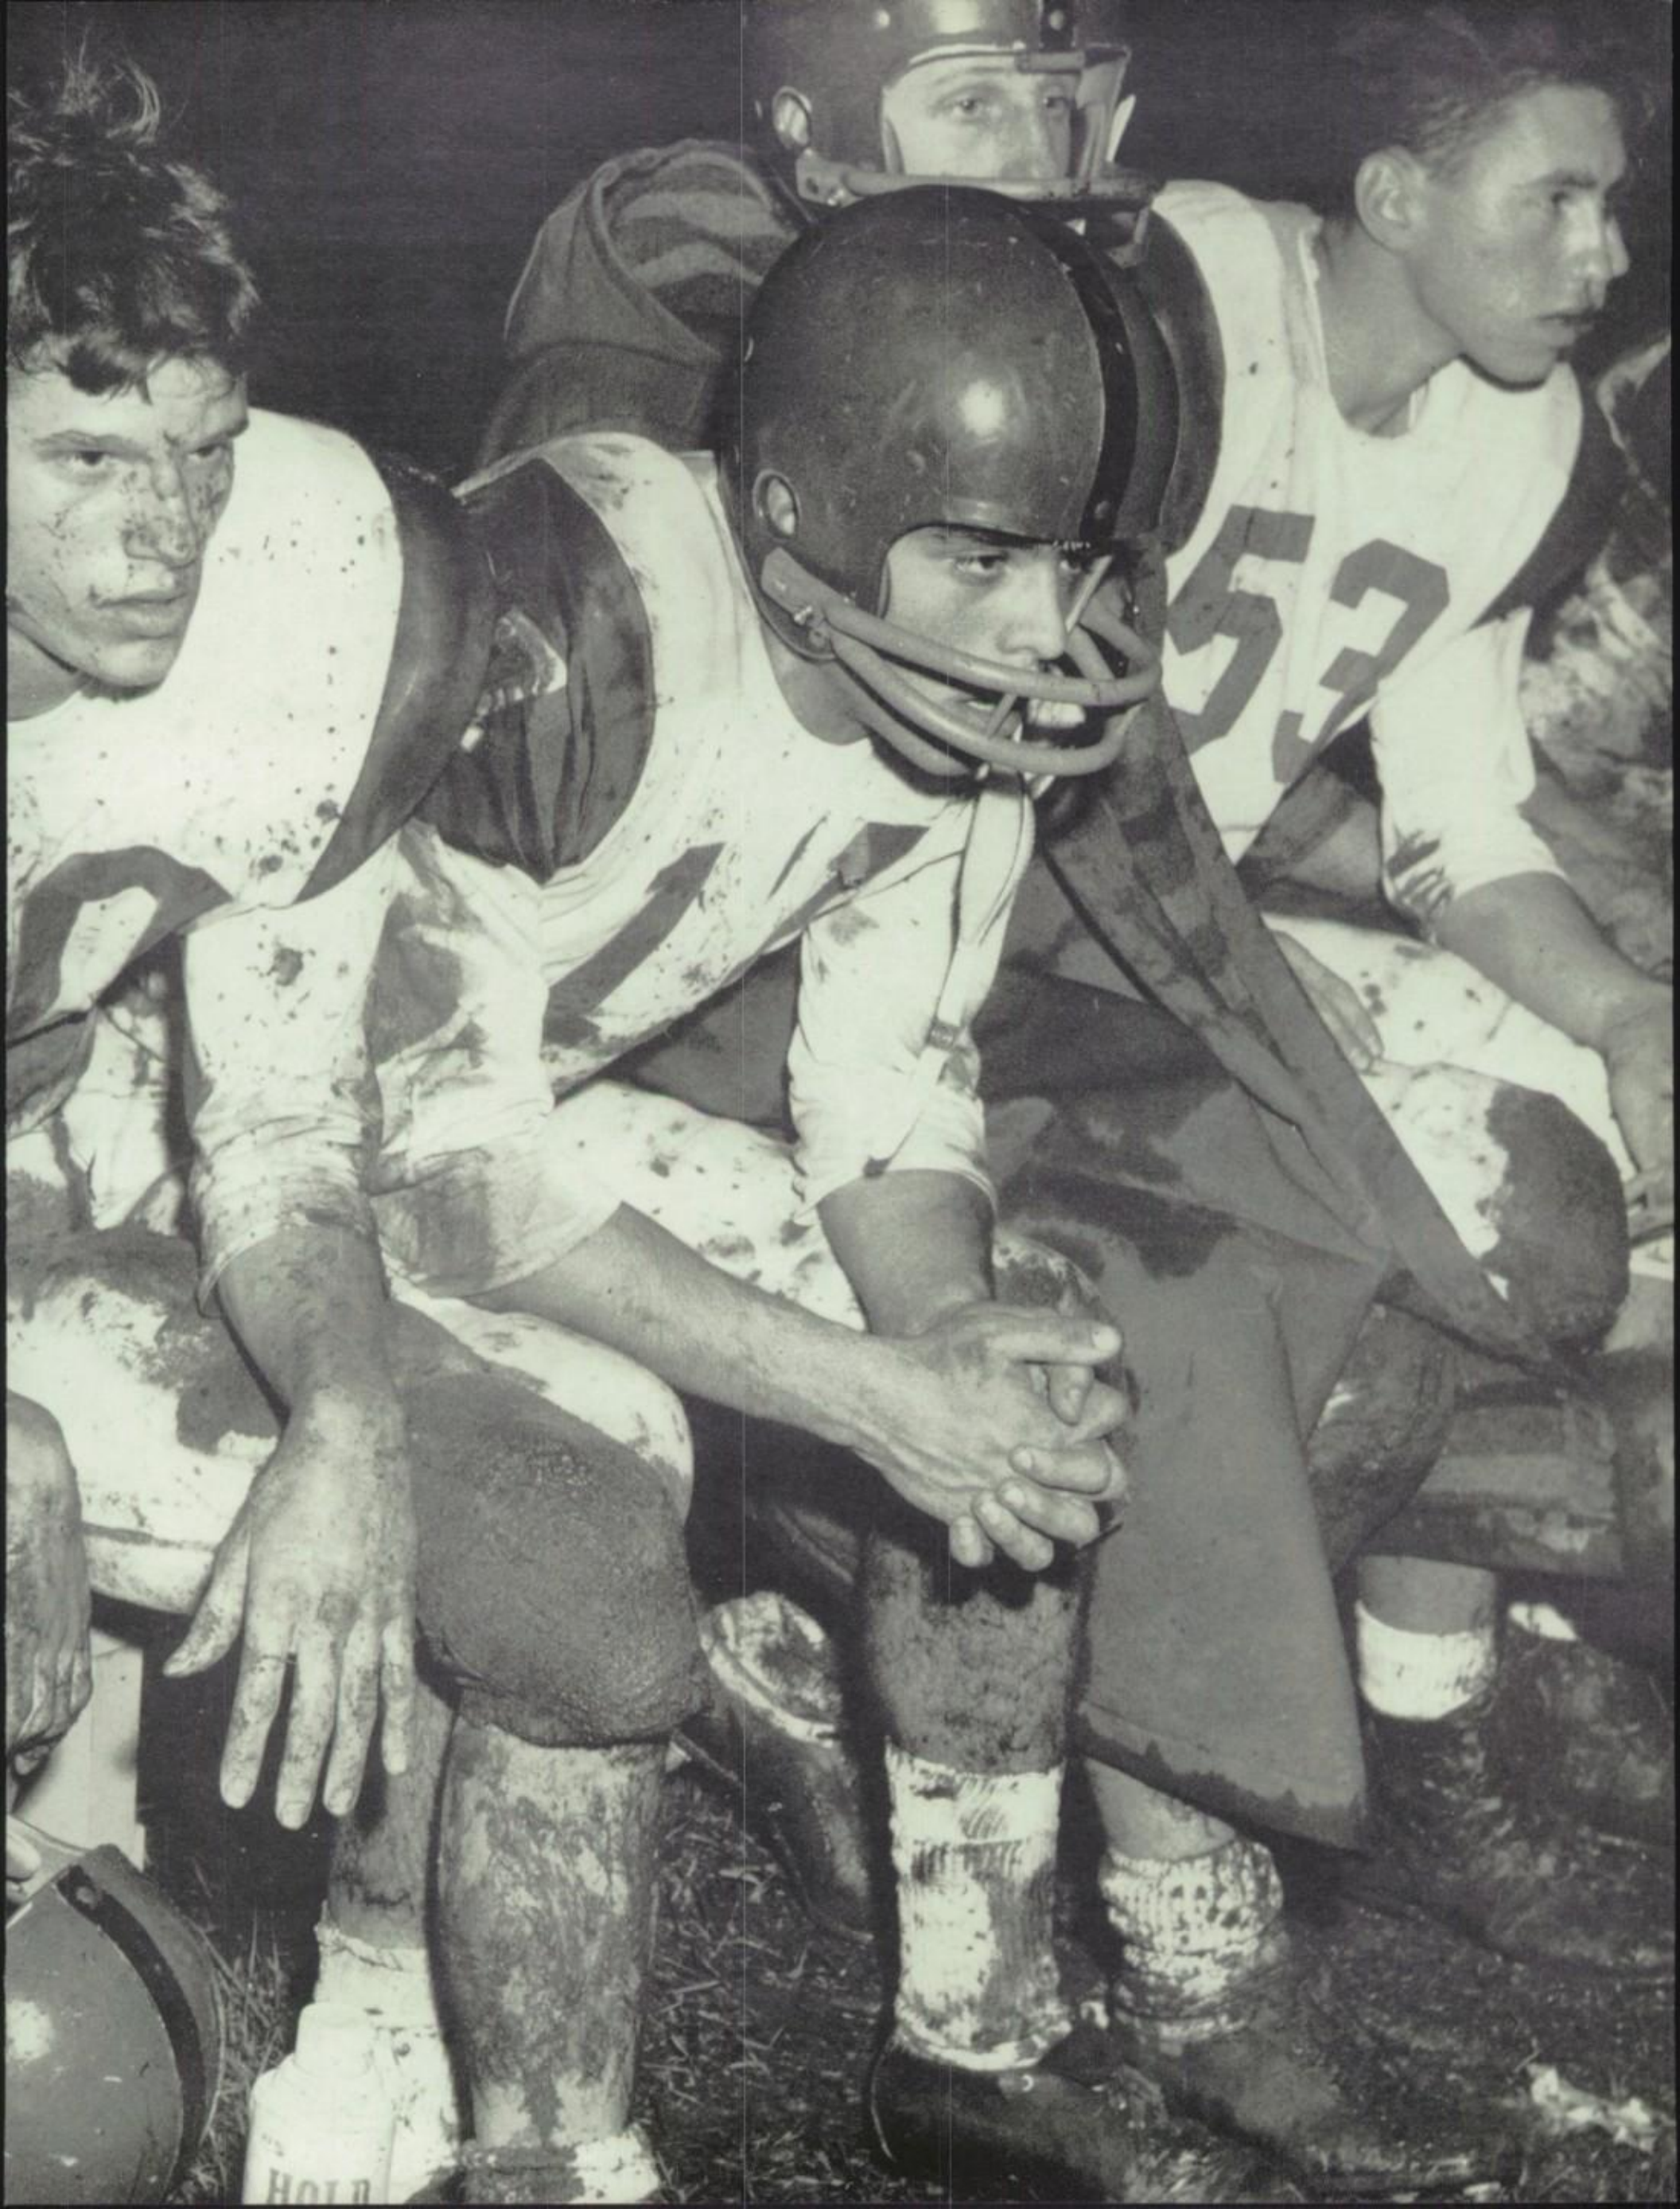
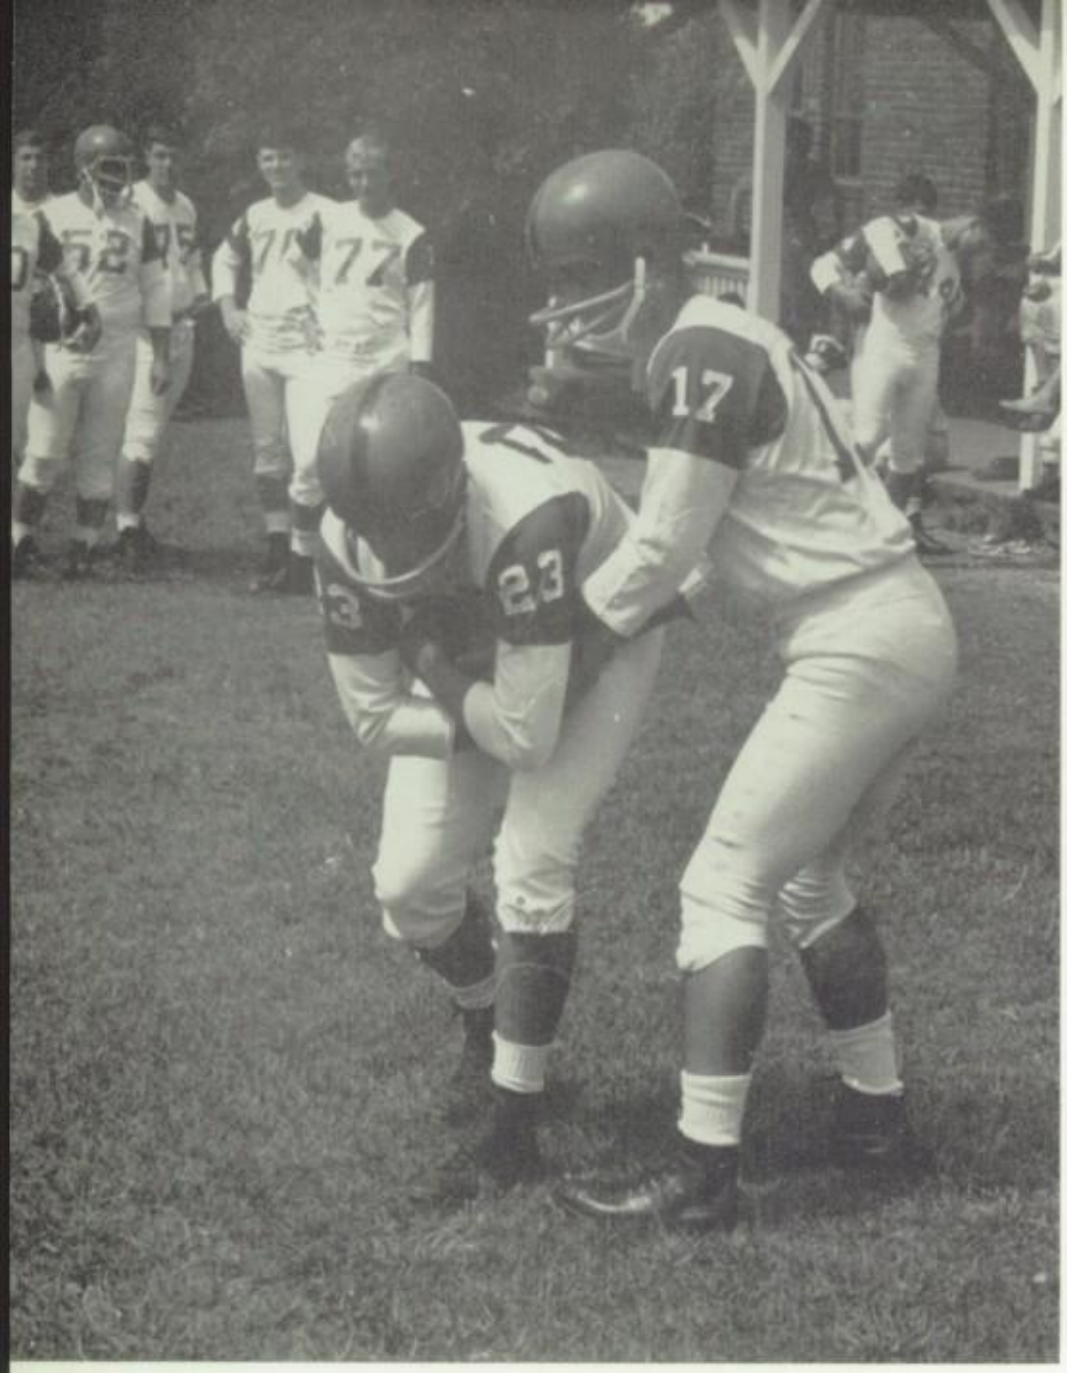
SPORTS





With the arrival of August 23, thirty-four Varsity Football trainees treked off to Lion's Health Camp for two weeks of grueling practice in preparation for the 65 season. Under the supervision of head coach Dick Farabaugh and new assistant Don Myers, the team practiced their pass, option, off tackle, and dive plays. And after all their strenuous exertion the boys sat down to meals prepared by Coach Ken Davis who stepped out of his third base line box to be chef for the two weeks.

Homecoming festivities and a muddy field accompanied the Little Injuns' second victory of the season, on October 15, as they carried out the Curwensville Tide. Trailing 6-0, with two minutes on the scoreboard clock, the Braves ignited as Sparks received the ball and zig-zagged his way through opposing tacklers, not stopping until he crossed the goal line. The extra point that scarcely cleared the crossbar secured Indiana's victory. Previous to this upset the Braves had met five other foes. In the home opener Bishop McCort easily penetrated Indiana's offense to score twice. Although Indiana posed a threat late in the fourth quarter, they were halted at the one-foot line. Gaining 168 yards rushing, the Indians overpowered the DuBois Beavers for the initial victory of the season. In the third contest Windber rambled over the Braves to maintain their jinx of eight years. The Injuns' first venture off home ground proved exciting, but disappointing, as a final period effort for an onside kick failed to provide the extra touchdown the Indians needed. Dark and muddy, Indiana's football field stood idle while damp, blanketed fans waited out a power failure for one and one-half hours. This midnight game of October 8, ended in a Punxy shut out. In their final home game, the Injuns lost their chance for a winning season as the Bearcats of Huntingdon overpowered them. October 29 marked the night 1,000 shivering fans witnessed the Braves' scalping of the Red Devils in Ebensburg, where late in the fourth quarter, entranced with excitement, Greg Spinelli leaped from the bench and assisted in tackling a Red Devil ball carrier. Cambria Heights' impregnable defensive line prevented any Indiana threats as the Highlanders shut out the Braves in the final game of the 1965 season.

Coach Richard Farabaugh announced his retirement late in December. His decision marked the end of an era that spanned fifteen years, from 1951 through 1965, in which Farabaugh-coached clubs at the high school compiled a record of eighty-five victories, forty-four defeats, and five ties. No other coach has held the position at Indiana as long as Mr. Farabaugh. He referred to the 1961 squad as the best combination offensive and defensive team and also the biggest he had ever tutored. He has retired to teaching and keeping score at other athletic events.

Coach Harry Wood's ambitious Junior Varsity team kicked off the 1965 season on September 20 at Punxsutawney and were handed their first defeat. The second game deadlocked Indiana and Laura Lamar in a scoreless tie. Kreutzberger's passes to Nance led the Braves to upset Central Cambria. On the muddy night of October 11, the Indians threatened Cambria Heights in the first quarter as Spinelli gathered in a pass and sprinted 70 yards for the only touchdown. Battling on home ground, the hard-hitting Injuns met Northern Cambria in a 6-6 tie. In the final game Indiana beat Purchase Line as the Braves took the opening kick and Gene Nance barreled 25 yards for the first goal.

Injun Hoopsters Field Experienced Ball Team

Before entering Tri-County action, the Braves met seven foes, losing only to Hollidaysburg and Punxsutawney. After the initial meetings of the six other teams in Tri-County, Indiana could boast only fourth place in league standings. Then, after rampaging Windber and Ferndale, the Indians found themselves tied for second place with Somerset's monopoly of first jeopardized when they were defeated by Richland. This boosted Indiana's hopes for the championship since Somerset was their next home game. Playing before a standing room only crowd, with neither team leading by more than four points, except twice, Indiana tarnished the Golden Eagles and plunged into a first place tie with Richland. Then the Injuns met the unexpected when they were defeated by seventh place Central Cambria. Although the Braves whipped Richland in their final encounter, they could only manage a three way tie with Somerset and Richland for the Tri-County Championship. Owing to lack of time there were no playoffs between the teams, and, since Indiana fell short of points, they did not attend District 6 playoffs.

Although capturing second place in the Hollidaysburg Tournament, Coach Harry Wood's matmen completed a 4-7 wrestling season this year. Having only four lettermen at the start of the season—Randy McCreary, Harry Stanley, Ralph Craig, and Gene Nance—the Injuns found new winners in Dick Nelson, Bob Casella, and Joey Yackuboskey. In the home opener against Blairsville, because of weight problems, Indiana was forced to default the 103 pound match. Traveling to Kittanning on January 7, the Braves received their first victory. In one of the most exciting matches, our grapplers pulled out six victories and a draw to defeat Conemaugh Township 23-22. When Indiana met undefeated Johnstown, the Injuns won three out of the first four bouts to lead the Trojans 16-3. Then Johnstown won the next eight matches to leave Indiana with a 31-16 loss. The Braves' final meet was a close victory over Latrobe.

Indiana School Hosts Section 4 Tournament

Highlighting the wrestling season was the Section Four Wrestling Tournament held at Indiana on February 18 and 19 with eight schools represented. In the quarter-finals held on Friday evening, Indiana emerged with eight semi-finalists, second only to Johnstown. But there were only two Indiana victors in the finals on Saturday evening, Harry Stanley in the 120 pound class and Harold Henry in the 90 pound class. These two matmen then entered the District 6 PIAA Wrestling Tournament at Altoona.

Varsity Injuries Steal Portion of J. V. Team

Spirit and determination did not seem to make up for inexperience this year as the Junior Varsity wrestlers finished with a losing season. Many of the J. V. grapplers were in their first year of training. The only J. V. wrestler sent to the Hollidaysburg Tournament, Joe Yackuboskey, wrestling in the 88 pound class, was victorious over his opponents. Although there was wrestling appreciation in gym classes, school support was lacking at the matches with other schools.

Gymnasts Meet Twice A Week to Use Apparatus

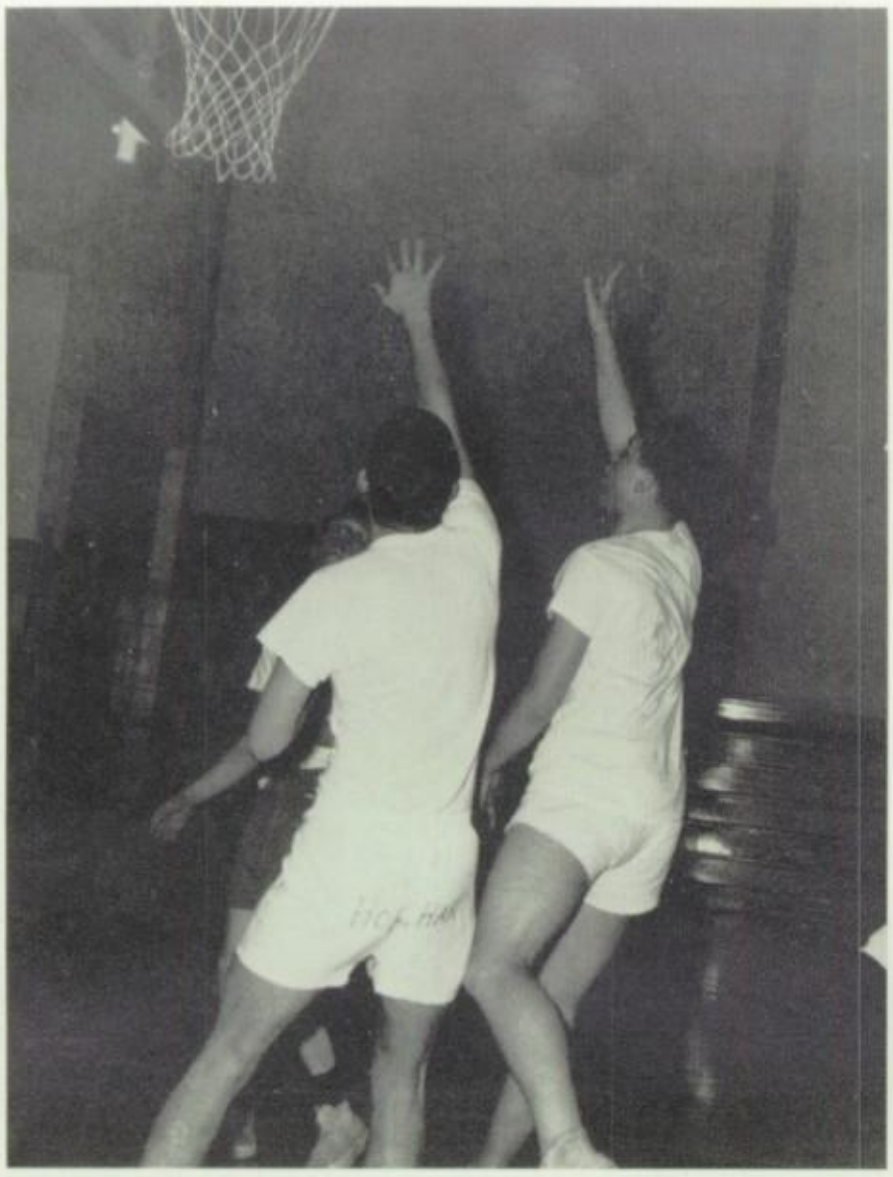
Gymnasts Izzy Farabaugh, Bev Adams, and Doris Lockard perform various skills on the balance beam which requires ability and coordination.

Seeing the world upside down, Pam Liegey executes a flip on the tramp.

During a gymnastic session, Mr. Mandigo and Barb Raiburn help Pam Liegey do a flip with the belt.

Becky Householder demonstrates an advanced stunt on the uneven parallel bars. Mr. Wingard appears apprehensive.

Four years ago, when first organized, Indiana's gymnastic team was taught simple stunts on the mats and apparatus. This year more advanced skills were learned by enthusiastic followers of this sport. Practices began with warm-up exercises under the direction of Mr. Wingard and Mr. Mandigo, teachers at the Junior High School. Girls used the uneven parallel bars, mats, the balance beam, and tramp while boys worked out primarily on the mats, the even bars, the high bar, the rings, the horse and the tramp. A gymnastic show was not sponsored this year. This group attended meets held at Penn State University and the University of Pittsburgh. Gymnastics was not a Varsity sport but hoped to enter interscholastic competition next year for the first time.



Intramurals' regular season continued into March, as six girl teams met each Tuesday and Friday evening in the gym between 3:30 and 5:30. Games were refereed by Bev Scott, Peggy Povolka, and Loretta Kirchner. On the basis of ability and sportsmanship, seventeen girls were chosen as members of the girls' All-Star Basketball Team. Under Mr. Sinclair, the boys played intramural basketball and volley ball. In the earlier part of the year, boys played flag football on the north field above the school. Due to a lack of interest from students, girls' volley ball and field hockey were dropped from the intramural program.

After one delay because of rainfall, Indiana's track team finally began their season on April 12 when they hosted Bishop McCort. In a continual downpour, causing some events to be cancelled and some to be modified—such as the two-mile relay of only eight laps, and the half-mile relay of four laps—Indiana topped Bishop McCort 82-57. In their second meet the Injuns captured fourteen first places, leaving Cambria Heights with only four firsts and a defeat of 99-51. In a triangular meet our cindermen were victorious with 79½ points to 55½ for DuBois and 54 for Laura Lamar. Mike Hoopes was the only double winner as he clinched the 100 and 440 yard dashes. At the annual County Track Meet held in Blairsville, Indiana secured third place when Dave Irvin placed second in the high jump, the final event.

Davismen Out to Improve Last Year's Record

After losing their opener and thrashing Nanty Glo, the Indiana diamondmen blanked Northern Cambria for the Braves' only shutout of the season. Although Indiana received four big runs in the home game, they were all unearned as the Colts had four costly errors. Seeking revenge, the Braves lashed out against Marion Center, pounding out fifteen hits for seventeen runs to trounce the Stingers 17-3. In a fourth-inning rally, the Injuns came from behind to beat Nanty Glo in a Tri-County League game. Tying the score in the fourth, the Braves secured their winning run in the bottom of the fifth as pitcher Lloyd Harris rapped a single that scored a man on third. In their final game in Tri-County, Indiana edged Central Cambria to end with a 6-4 record in league play.
